THE FDP ALUMNI PROGRAMME BROADENED THE CAREER HORIZONS OF BENEFICIARIES

In 2018, the FDP launched an Alumni programme to help beneficiaries become more future-ready by introducing them to alternative career choices and skill-sets that they require to transition into the work force.

The Alumni programme comprises a coaching and facilitator training programme.

1. The coaching programme complements career mentoring programmes at institutes of higher learning, which our current and past beneficiaries are familiar with and curates coaches based on the youths' feedback on career interests. Social media influencer, Andrea Chong, and Income's Head of Transformation Office, Max Tiong, coached the inaugural batch of students on social media marketing and design-thinking respectively.

2. The facilitator training programme, was inspired by feedback from FDP beneficiaries who expressed a desire to give back to the FDP as they had benefitted from the programme. The facilitator training aims to groom beneficiaries who are interested to explore a career as a trainer and equip them with the necessary skill-sets. For 2018, 23 students were trained as assistant facilitators and they honed their effective listening, negotiation and leadership skills at the FDP workshops tagged to trainers.
