As a member of IMAS, Fullerton adopts the principles and standards of investment conduct, which includes ensuring fair allocation, as set out in the IMAS Code of Ethics and Standards of Professional Conduct. Additionally, when determining if there are any potential conflicts of interest, Fullerton will take into account factors that include the assets (including cash) of the underlying fund as well as the assets of the other collective investment schemes managed by it. In particular:

- (a) Fullerton will conduct all transactions at arm's length and enter into transactions which are consistent with the investment objective and approach of the underlying fund and the other collective investment schemes managed by it;
- (b) Fullerton will use reasonable endeavours at all times to act fairly and in the interests of the underlying fund. In particular, after taking into account the availability of cash and the relevant investment guidelines of the underlying fund, it will endeavour to ensure that securities bought and sold will be allocated proportionately; and

Other Parties

The auditor of this sub-fund is KPMG LLP. Please note that financial results ending 31 December of each year will be audited.

Material Information

The underlying fund is single priced and may suffer a reduction in value as a result of the transaction costs incurred in the purchase and sale of its underlying investments (such costs could include, but are not limited to, dealing spreads, broker commissions, custody transaction costs, stamp duties or sales taxes) caused by subscriptions, switches and/or redemptions in and out of the underlying fund. This is known as "dilution". In order to counter this and to protect investors' interests, the investment manager of the underlying fund may apply a technique known as swing pricing or dilution adjustment as part of its valuation policy. This will mean that in certain circumstances, the investment manager of the underlying fund will make adjustments in the calculations of the NAV to counter the impact of dealing and other costs on occasions when these are deemed to be significant. Dilution adjustment only reduces the effect of dilution and does not eliminate it entirely.

The investment manager of the underlying fund adopts a "partial swing pricing" method. The need to make a dilution adjustment will depend upon the net value of subscriptions, switches and redemptions received on each dealing day. The investment manager of the underlying fund therefore reserves the right to make a dilution adjustment where the underlying fund experiences a net cash movement which exceeds a threshold, set by the investment manager of the underlying fund (or their delegates from time to time) from time to time, of the dealing day's NAV. Please note that dilution adjustment will not be applied if the net transaction on each dealing day does not exceed the threshold. The use of a threshold means that dilution arising from a net transaction that is below the threshold may not be reduced.

The investment manager of the underlying fund has the discretion to determine and vary the threshold from time to time. The investment manager of the underlying fund may also make a discretionary dilution adjustment if, in its opinion, it is in the interest of

Income Global Absolute Alpha Fund

Fund Summary
as of 15 April 2025

existing investors to do so (such as during times of stress in the markets). Where a dilution adjustment is made, it will typically increase the NAV when there are net inflows and decrease the NAV when there are net outflows. The NAV of the underlying fund will be calculated separately but any dilution adjustment will, in percentage terms, affect the NAV identically.

The amount of the dilution adjustment can vary over time but normally will not exceed 2% of the relevant NAV. The investment manager of the underlying fund reserves the right to increase or vary the dilution adjustment without notice to shareholders of the underlying fund. In particular, please refer to paragraphs 4.1, 4.2 and 13 for application of dilution adjustment on the NAV.

Further information on other material information can be found the underlying fund's prospectus.
